DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

FORECAST OF THE Rabi CROPS OF 1911-12 IN EASTERN BENGAL.

[NOTE.—On the average of the five years ending 1909-10, the area under boro rice in Eastern Bengal represents some 0·4 per cent. of the total area under rice in British India.]

THE most important constituent of the rabi crops of Eastern Bengal are the pulses, such as khesari, mung, maskalai, arhar, masur, gram and peas. The total area covered by these crops is estimated at about 8½ lakhs of acres, but to a large extent they are grown on land from which a rice crop has been taken earlier in the agricultural year. Next in importance come the tobacco and boro rice crops, each covering about 2¾ lakhs of acres. The tobacco crop is a very valuable asset, especially in Rangpur and Jalpaiguri. Boro rice also contributes largely to the prosperity of the country, because though the grain is coarse the crop is a heavy yielder and practically never fails. Orchard and garden crops, which are harvested during the cold and dry seasons, from 15th November to 15th June, are included as rabi crops. They comprise chiefly vegetables, pan leaf, cocoanuts, betel-nuts, etc. A general idea of their extent can be formed from the rough estimate of their area, viz., 2¾ lakhs of acres. Condiments and spices (ginger, turmeric, coriander, chillies, etc.) other than those grown in gardens are represented by an estimate of 1½ lakhs of acres. The cereals include barley and such millets as cheena and kaon, covering a total area of about a lakh of acres. The only fibre grown as a rabi crop is sunn hemp, the cultivation of which is most general in the Serajganj subdivision of Pabna, but is also more widely extended in other districts than is indicated by the present estimates. Other rabi crops, viz., oilseeds, sugarcane, and wheat, are repor ed on separately.

2. Character of the season.—Owing to copious monsoon rainfall the season was expected to be very favourable; but late heavy showers in October and November accompanied by an untimely rise in river levels, damaged early sowings and delayed further sowings. Subsequently the usual cold-weather showers, which greatly promote the growth of rabi crops, failed; December in particular was a month of extreme drought, and the ensuing three months did not produce much alleviation. Since the latter part of March there has been a great deal of rain, but in most cases it came too late to be beneficial, in some cases even it was so heavy as to injure the standing crops. On the whole the season was not favourable.

Outturns.—District Officers estimate the average outturn of rabi pulses at 75 per cent. of the normal yield per unit area; some of them have not distinguished between pulses and millets; the estimated total area under these two varieties of crops is 881,200 acres against 933,300 acres last year. The estimated area under tobacco has also declined from 285,100 acres to 268,300 acres, and the outturn per unit area from 85 to 73 per cent. of the normal; this crop suffered severely from the weather conditions mentioned above. The cereals were the only rabi crops not adversely affected by the weather conditions. Much of the boro rice is irrigated; District Officers estimate the outturn per acre at 89 per cent. of the normal; it would have been more but for the storms which have damaged the crop during April; the estimated area under boro rice has also increased slightly and stands at 275,200 acres. District Officers return the area under barley as having decreased to 64,300 acres and estimate the outturn per acre as only 75 per cent. of the normal. There can be little doubt that the latter figure at any rate is too low and that the crop gave at least a normal yield per unit area. Orchard and garden produce is returned as yielding 83 per cent. of the normal outturn per acre, the untimely distribution of rain being responsible for the yield falling below average. Similar remarks apply to "condiments and spices" which are estimated as yielding 82 per cent. of the normal outturn per unit area, and to sunn hemp, estimated at 79 per cent. It is probable that most of the district estimates of outturn are too low; but except in the case of barley, sufficiently definite information is not available to justify modification of the figures.

CALCUTTA, S. G. HART,

The 26th April 1912. Director of Agriculture, Bengal.

The total absence of rain retarded the growth and reduced the outturn of the crops.	The moth-borer did some damage to boro paddy. Some early sowings of pulses were destroyed by late floods, but the sowings were repeated, generally with very fair results. From general appearance and reports from various sources, the barley crop was distinctly above average. No return has been made of the area under sunn hemp, which is understood to be increasing.

DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS

For the week ending on the 29th April 1912.

Summary.—Storms have been frequent and rainfall generally heavy. In the western districts conditions are favourable for cultivation, but in the eastern half of the province excessive rain has damaged crops already sown and is preventing further sowings and the weeding of jute and aus rice.

Prices of common rice continue to rise, partly owing to heavy exports. The average retail price this week is 1·4 per cent. higher than last week.

Rinderpest is prevalent in the Presidency and Chittagong Divisions.

II. The draft will be taken into consideration on or after the 8th June 1912, and any objection or suggestion received by the undersigned before that date will be duly considered.

Draft Rules.

1. So long as the Commissioners deem it practicable and consistent with the maintenance of an efficient water-supply, they may allow any owner or occupier of a masonry building, paying a water-rate imposed under the provisions of Part VII of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, on the annual value of such building, when such annual value is not less than Rs. 150, to lay down communication-pipes from the service-pipes of the Commissioners for the purpose of leading water to such building for domestic purposes only subject to the following rules and conditions.

2. The owner or occupier of any masonry building requiring water to be laid on to such building for domestic purposes, or requiring any addition or alteration to an existing water-supply, must apply for the same on a printed form to be supplied free of cost at the Municipal office.

3. A fee of Rs. 2 must be paid to the Commissioners by such owner or occupier for each building connection before any work is commenced, such fee to be in addition to all other costs and charges imposed under these rules.

4. Each building must have a separate connection, and extensions from the communication-pipe of one building to another shall not be permitted.

5. The owner or occupier of the building, in respect of which the connection is required, must pay the entire cost of the connection, including the supply and fixing of the fittings referred to in rule 7, and must also pay the cost of such alterations in, or repairs to, roads, drains, sewers, and gas or water mains or pipes, and the cost of such other works, as may be necessitated by, or result from, the work of making such connection.

6. (1) The work required may, at the option of the Commissioners, either be carried out by the Commissioners themselves, at the expense of the owner or occupier of the building in respect of which the work is required, or may be carried out by a person or firm employed by such owner or occupier and approved by the Commissioners.

(2) The work must be done under the supervision of an officer appointed by the Commissioners in this behalf, and no connection must be made with the Municipal water main except at such time as may be appointed, and in such position as may be selected, by an authorised Municipal officer.

7. A building connection shall comprise the following parts or fittings:—

(a) a brass or gun-metal ferrule inserted in the main supply-pipe;
(b) a galvanised iron communication-pipe from the ferrule to the meter;
(c) a stop-cock and its surface box;

(e) service-pipes from the stop-cock to the taps; and
(f) taps.

8. (1) All the fittings referred to in rule 7 shall be exact duplicates of standard samples kept in the office of the Commissioners and approved by them in meeting.

(2) All fittings shall be inspected and tested and stamped by an officer of the Municipality before being fixed.

(3) If any owner or occupier shall desire to adopt any fitting of a pattern different from the standard patterns, he must present such fitting for the approval of the Chairman; and any fittings so presented may, if considered satisfactory by the Chairman, be stamped, and samples thereof may be purchased and placed among the standard fittings.

9. The size of the ferrule referred to in clause (a) of rule 7 shall be decided by the Commissioners, but its diameter shall not differ from that of the communication-pipe referred to in clause (b) of that rule by more than ¼ inch.

10. (1) The diameter of the communication-pipe shall be determined with regard to the average pressure in the main supply-pipe at the point nearest the building for which a connection is required and to the quantity of water to be supplied.

(2) The diameter of the communication-pipe shall be such that it will be capable of delivering the estimated daily supply in six hours.

(3) The building connection, when fitted in position, must be capable of standing a pressure of 100 feet, and no water shall be supplied until this test has been applied by the Commissioners.

11. (1) Every tap shall be of the same size as the pipe to which it is attached, and shall be of brass and of the pattern known as screw-down. Every tap shall be at least three feet above the road level.

(2) The stop-cock shall be built in a brick chamber provided with a cast-iron surface cover-box so designed that it can be locked and the key of this box shall remain under the control of the Chairman.

(3) The stop-cock shall be capable of adjustment so that the supply to the building may be regulated thereby.

13. (1) The meter shall be placed as near to the stop-cock as possible and in a position where it can be conveniently examined.

(2) The meter must be fixed in a brick chamber covered over with a cast-iron surface-box of approved pattern.

(3) Subject to the provisions of rule 11 no meter must be touched or interfered with in any way except with the permission of the Chairman.

14. The Commissioners shall depute an authorised person to read every meter not less than once a quarter, and shall give notice to the occupier at least twenty-four hours before the reading is recorded.

15. (1) Every owner or occupier of any building in respect of which a connection has been made under these rules shall be entitled to a supply of 750 gallons of water per quarter for each rupee paid by him as water-rate per annum in respect of such building.

(2) For all water in excess of the amount allowed under sub-rule (1) such owner or occupier shall be charged quarterly as follows:—

Provided that the disconnection of such pipe shall not relieve any person from any liabilities which he may have incurred under these rules.

REPORT ON THE BRUCE INSTITUTION FOR THE YEAR 1911.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 3074.—The 6th April 1912.—The following is published for general information.

J. H. KERR,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Report on the Bruce Institution for the year 1911.

I. Control.—(1) During the year under review the following gentlemen were appointed by Government, under rule 10, to be Governors :—

(a) Mr. M. Prothero, vice Mr. E. L. Preston, resigned.
(b) The Hon. Mr. F. H. Stewart, vice Mr. A. M. Monteath, resigned.

(2) The following is a list of the Governors holding office at the end of the year :—

The Hon. the Chief Justice of Bengal,	Ex-officio.
The Most Revd. the Lord Bishop of Calcutta,
The Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals, Bengal,
The Chairman of the Calcutta Municipality,
The Director of Public Instruction (Honorary Secretary),

The Hon. Sir Richard Harington, Bart.
The Hon. Mr. W. C. Madge, C.I.E.
The Hon. Mr. F. H. Stewart, C.I.E.
The Ven. Archdeacon Wickins.
The Revd. Father A. Van de Mergel, S.J.
The Revd. R. C. Grose.
M. Prothero, Esq., M.A.

II. Capital and Income.—The capital of the Institution stood as in the previous year, at Rs. 10,51,200, of which Rs. 10,46,200 are in the form of a 3½ per cent. stock certificate of the year 1865. The balance, viz., Rs. 5,000, is invested in 3½ per cent. Government Securities. The annual interest on the capital amounts to Rs. 36,792. The year opened with a balance of Rs. 19,775-6-10 and closed with a balance of Rs. 3,035-15-6. The reason why the closing balance was unusually small is that the second half-yearly interest of Rs. 18,396 for the year, which is generally received in December, was not received till January 1912.

III. Election to vacancies, etc.—(1) The annual election of foundationers was held on the 31st January. For the 20 vacancies advertised, 66 applications were received, but 3 vacancies having subsequently occurred, 23 girls were elected on the recommendation of a sub-committee consisting of the Hon. Mr. W. C. Madge, C.I.E., Mr. M. Prothero, the Revd. Father A. Van de Mergel, S.J., and the Revd. R. C. Grose. Of the girls elected, 12 were placed in the Loreto Convent, Entally (9 in the Boarding School and 3 in the Orphanage), 5 in the Calcutta Girls' High School, 2 in the Loreto Convent, Asansol, 1 in St. Joseph's Convent, Cuttack, 1 in the Protestant European Orphanage, Cuttack, 1 in the Pratt Memorial School and 1 in the Dow Hill School, Kurseong.

(2) Of the 14 girls withdrawn during the year, 6 had attained the age of seventeen years, the limit ordinarily allowed under the rules ; 5 girls were withdrawn before they had attained that age, and 3 died.

(3) Of the girls who had been withdrawn during the preceding year, and in respect of whom reports have been received during the year under review, one was employed as a pupil-teacher in the school where she was educated ; another is being trained as a teacher in the Training School at Kurseong. One girl is employed as a typist in a Government office ; another is learning shorthand and type-writing and one is learning type-writing only. One girl was married.

(4) At the close of the year there were 137 girls on the foundation, against 126 in the preceding year. They were distributed as follows :—

Loreto Convent, Entally ...	Boarding School ...	34	62
	Orphanage ...	28
Calcutta Girls' High School			43
Pratt Memorial School			11
St. Paul's Mission Home			7
La Martinière, Calcutta			2
Calcutta Free School			2
Loreto Convent, Asansol			3
Old Church Parochial Home			2
Protestant European Orphanage, Cuttack ...			2
St. Joseph's Convent, Cuttack			1
St. Andrew's Colonial Homes, Kalimpong ...			1
Dow Hill School, Kurseong			1
Total ...			137

(5) The following table affords particulars as to the class and religion of the foundationers at the close of the year :—

Class.	Roman Catholics.	Church of England.	Non-Conformists.	Total.
1. Orphans or deserted by parents.	25	10	9	44
2. Fatherless, or deserted by their fathers, or those whose fathers were incapable.	42	20	20	82
3. Having father or both parents alive.	2	1	8	11
Total ...	69	31	37	137

(6) The health of the girls was on the whole satisfactory.

IV. Education and maintenance.—(1) The nature of the education imparted to the girls on the foundation was generally that prescribed for Elementary and Higher Elementary Schools under the Code of Regulations for European Schools in Bengal or for the Cambridge Local Examinations. In exceptional cases a higher education is given.

(2) Parents and guardians are generally given the choice of any boarding school for the education and maintenance of their children or wards, provided that such a school has been approved by Government as suitable for girls enjoying the benefits of the Bruce Foundation. A sum of Rs. 21-8 or Rs. 16 a month is paid for the education and maintenance of each foundationer in a boarding school or an orphanage, as the case may be. A sum of Rs. 40 or of Rs. 25 is also allowed for each foundationer for an outfit on joining a boarding school or an orphanage, as the case may be. Under the rules a girl is not ordinarily allowed to remain on the Fund after she has attained the age of 17 years, when an outfit grant of Rs. 50 is generally given to enable her to make a start in life. If, however, a girl elects to take up teaching as a profession, an extension is generally allowed. Short extensions of a few months are also generally allowed to girls who are preparing for examinations under the Code of Regulations for European Schools, or for the Cambridge Locals, or who are learning shorthand or type-writing. One such extension was granted during the year.

(3) The monthly average cost of the education and maintenance of each girl on the Fund amounted to Rs. 18-11, against Rs. 18-12-8 in the preceding year.

(4) The amounts paid under the different heads of expenditure were as shown below :—

1911.	Rs.	A.	P.	1910.	Rs.	A.	P.

V. Inspection.—The Revd. R. C. Grose was the Visiting Governor for the first-half, and re-appointed to the same office for the second half, of the year. His reports were satisfactory. Mr. Grose stated in his first report that he found the wards of the Bruce Institution well cared for in every respect and that no sickness or disability of any kind was found among them. In his second report he stated that in all the schools he found that the wards of the Bruce Institution receive the same care and attention given to regular boarders and that the children looked well and happy and were decently and cleanly clothed.

VI. Meetings.—Four meetings were held during the year, and among the various resolutions passed the following may be noted :—

(a) That the Loreto Convent, Asansol, should be placed in the list of schools approved by Government as suitable for the education and maintenance of girls on the Bruce Foundation.

(b) That in future the election meeting should be held not later than the 15th January.

NOTICE.

CLAUSE 10 of the bye-laws under section 559 (51) of the Calcutta Municipal Act, prescribing the conditions under which persons are permitted to drive registered carts, which were sanctioned by the Local Government in 1905 and are at present in force, reads as follows :—

"Every driver shall carry with him, when plying for hire, the cart license for the then current half-year, or when the driver or person in charge of a cart is not its proprietor he shall carry with him a copy of the said license, under the signature of the proprietor, and produce it for inspection whenever required to do so by any Municipal or Police officer or the hirer of the cart."

It was originally proposed by the General Committee to repeal this clause, and notice of the proposal was given on the 19th February last. In supersession of this notice, it is now notified for the information of the public, in compliance with the provisions of section 565 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, that the General Committee instead of repealing the clause in question intend to modify it as follows :—

"Every driver shall carry with him when plying for hire the metal disc bearing the number corresponding to the branded number on the cart for the then current half-year, and produce it for inspection whenever required to do so by any Municipal or Police officer or the hirer of the cart."

Objections, if any, will be received up to Monday, the 24th June 1912, and may be addressed to the undersigned.

REPORTS ON THE WORKING OF THE POISONS ACT, I OF 1904.

THE following Resolution is published for general information :—

MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT—MEDICAL.

Darjeeling, the 7th May 1912.

RESOLUTION No. 178T.—Medl.

READ—

The reports on the working of the Poisons Act, I of 1904, during the year 1911.

THE reports dealt with in this Resolution relate only to such districts as comprise the new Presidency of Bengal. The steps taken in previous years to make generally known the provisions of the Act were continued, and no special steps were taken in the matter during the year 1911.

2. The total numbers of licenses granted during the year under review were 208 under section 2 and 297 under section 4 of the Act. Outside Calcutta, where the total number of licenses issued under both the sections amounted to 116 against 131 licenses in 1910, the largest number of licenses were current in the Burdwan and Presidency Divisions. Out of the 15 districts in the three Divisions of Rajshahi, Dacca and Chittagong, no licenses were issued in five districts (viz. Jalpaiguri, Rangpur, Faridpur Backergunge and Tippera), and in the remainder the number of licenses current was generally small. Large numbers of licenses were granted in the districts of Midnapore (76), Birbhum (48), Dacca (44), Pabna (33), Howrah (26), Khulna (25), Hooghly (23), and (Burdwan (23). It is reported that in Calcutta, as well as in certain districts, some shop-keepers who took out licenses in previous years surrendered their licenses in 1911. This is most noticeable in the case of the district of Mymensingh, where 40 licensees surrendered their licenses, as they did not find the business profitable. The result of the surrender was that there was only one license current throughout the district during the year under report. There is reason to suspect that unlicensed sales of poisons are still going on in some places, and the District Officers should continue their endeavours to stop the illicit practice.

3. The duty of supervision and inspection was generally carried out by the police, and in some districts (especially in the eastern divisions) by medical officers. Some instances of irregularities in the mode of keeping accounts for sales of poisons were detected, and in such cases the licensees were warned. The result of inspection shows that the provisions of the Act are now generally understood.

(1) Burdwan.	(5) 24-Parganas.
(2) Midnapore.	(6) Khulna.
(3) Hooghly.	(7) Jalpaiguri.
(4) Howrah.	(8) Malda.

4. The total number of prosecutions instituted under the Act was 15, of which 12 ended in conviction. These prosecutions were made in eight districts only as named in the margin. The failure of the case instituted at Calcutta necessitated the inclusion of "strychnine" amongst the poisons specified in the rules framed under the Poisons Act.

5. During the year under review the Act appears to have worked well on the whole, and the reduction in the number of cattle-poisoning cases may fairly be attributed to its provisions. In some districts, however, the practice of cattle-poisoning is still frequent. Such crime can be checked effectively only by increased and sustained vigilance on the part of the District Magistrates in working the provisions of the law.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to all Commissioners of Divisions, to the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, and to the Inspector-General of Police (through the Political Department).

H. L. STEPHENSON,

Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS

For the week ending on the 13th May 1912.

Summary.—Rain fell during the week all over the Province except in Jessore, Khulna, Midnapore and Howrah. The fall was moderate in the Rajshahi and Dacca Divisions and generally light elsewhere. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

THIRD AND FINAL FORECAST OF THE WHEAT CROP OF BENGAL, 1911-12.

[NOTE.—On the average of the five years ending 1909-10, the area under wheat in Bengal is estimated to represent 0·5 per cent. of the total area under wheat in India.]

Character of the Season.—The chief wheat-growing districts in Bengal are Malda, Murshidabad, Nadia and Pabna. Owing to heavy rain in September and October, the sowings were a little later than usual in some places; but a considerable amount of moisture was left in the soil, and the germination and growth of the crop were good. The season, however, in the chief wheat-growing districts. subsequent to the issue of the second forecast, has been marked by insufficient rainfall, and the strong west wind has damaged the crop in some places. The prospects therefore are not uniformly favourable throughout the Province

Area sown.—The total area sown with the crop this year as estimated by the district officers is 140,000 acres against 142,800 acres last year.

Outturn.—The average of district officers' estimates of outturn per acre works out to 85 per cent. against 76 per cent. of the normal last year. The information available does not justify the adoption of any other estimates. Taking the normal yield to be 7 cwt. per acre, the estimate of total yield is 41,700 tons against 38,000 tons last year or an increase of about 10 per cent.

At the end of April the average price of wheat at the principal marts of the Province was Rs. 4-1-4 per maund or 1 per cent. higher than at the same date of last year, but 9 per cent. less than in 1910. The average wholesale price of rice on the other hand for the Province at the end of April was 16 per cent. and 13 per cent. higher than at the same dates in 1911 and 1910, respectively.

Director of Agriculture, Bengal.

Pabna	16,000	16,000	16,000	100	80	Middle of March. Normal.	There was practically very little rain from February till harvest time. Hence the outturn was below the normal. The crop ripened at the normal time of harvesting.
Malda	60,000	40,000	40,000	70	90*	March. Normal	The weather was not favourable. About 10 per cent. of the crop was damaged by the strong west wind from the end of February till harvest time, and hence the outturn is below the normal.

DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS

For the week ending on the 20th May 1912.

Summary.—The seasonable character of the weather during the past week has improved the prospects of agriculture generally and has enabled cultivators to get on with the work of weeding their fields. The rainfall in April was excessive in the eastern districts of the Province. But the deleterious effects of this have now been to a large extent counteracted. The price of rice still shows a slight tendency to rise. Cattle-disease is reported from Nadia, Jessore, Malda, Dacca, Mymensingh and Noakhali.

MEMORANDUM FOR INVENTORS DEALING WITH THE ARMY OR MARINE DEPARTMENT OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

1. Instructions how to submit.—Persons who desire to submit any invention for the consideration of the Government of India should do so by letter addressed to the Secretary to the Government of India in the Army or Marine Department through the Director-General of Ordnance in India.

2. The letter should state the nature of the invention and give sufficient particulars to enable its merits to be fully considered, and adduce any evidence there may be of the usefulness of the invention, obtained by actual previous experiment. Any drawings, models or samples which it is desired to submit should either accompany the letter or be sent separately at the same time, or if bulky, particulars should be given as to the place at which the samples or models can be inspected if necessary. All designs, plans, drawings, models, samples or papers submitted are at the owner's risk, and the Army or Marine Department cannot accept any responsibility for damage to them, should such occur.

3. The letter should also state whether the inventor has acquired an exclusive privilege under the Inventions and Designs Act II of 1888 or a patent under the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, or whether application has been made for a patent under the latter Act. If the invention is not so covered, the fact should be stated.

4. Terms.—The letter should also state what remuneration or terms the inventor would ask if the Government of India should desire—

(i) to acquire exclusive use of the invention;

(ii) to acquire unrestricted use of the invention, but also allowing the inventor a free hand to let others use it.

If no remuneration is desired, the fact should be stated.

5. Should the Government of India consider it desirable to try an invention, the inventor will, as a general rule, be required to bear the expense of the provision of the article, its carriage, fitting up and removal, but the question whether such expenses shall, in special cases, be finally borne by the Government of India, or by the inventor, will be decided by the Governor-General in Council according to the circumstances of the case.

6. Retention of description.—The Government of India reserve the right to retain for future reference any designs, plans, drawings, models, samples or papers forming an essential part of the description of the invention which may be forwarded; but if the inventor desires their return, the Government of India will not refuse it unless they think there is good reason for doing so. It is desirable, however, that the inventor should keep copies.

7. Adoption of invention.—Should the invention be adopted for Military or Marine services, terms for its use will be fixed by subsequent agreement, and such terms will include the supply of two copies of all designs, drawings, patterns and particulars relating to the invention which may be considered necessary by the Government of India; and it is to be understood that all such designs, drawings, patterns and particulars will be absolutely at the disposal of the Government of India for all purposes whatever, and that for them reasonable prices only will be paid to cover the cost of draughtmanship and manufacture.

8. No claim for remuneration for an invention will be held to be established, unless the invention has been adopted into the service.

9. All claims for remuneration will be carefully considered, but any award which may be made will only be payable to the claimant when approved by the Government of India.

RESOLUTION--By the Government of India, Finance Department.

IN connection with the Report of the Royal Commission upon Decentralization, the Government of India referred, for the opinion of local Governments, a number of specific points affecting the financial relations of the Imperial with the Provincial Governments. The particular questions on which advice was sought may be summarised as follows:—

(a) Certain problems regarding the assignment of revenue to the provinces under the quasi-permanent settlements.
(b) The desirability of provincial taxation.
(c) The advisability of floating provincial loans in the open market.
(d) The control to be exercised over the borrowing of local bodies.
(e) The delegation of powers of reappropriation.

The reports of local Governments have been considered in detail by the Governor-General in Council; the orders of the Secretary of State have been taken where necessary; and the object of the present resolution is to bring together in one place the decisions which have been reached upon the various points at issue.

The reason for not issuing the Resolution earlier lies in the desire of the Government of India to see the results of the first year's working of the new financial arrangements with the provinces.

2. The revision of the Provincial Settlements.—In connection with the quasi-permanent provincial settlements, the scope of the reference was comparatively limited. The Government of India expressly declared their intention of retaining unchanged the principles underlying the existing settlements and the control which they exercised over the provincial budgets. They invited the opinions of the local Governments on three relatively minor points only, namely, the reduction of over-grown fixed assignments, the gradual elimination of divided heads, and the policy of making special grants from imperial to provincial revenues. When, however, the time came to consider the replies, conditions had changed. The financial position of India was such that it was clearly desirable to take a step which would constitute a decided advance in the evolution of the settlement system. It is not necessary here to describe at any length the history of this system.

Theory of the settlements.

Its institution represents an attempt to solve a problem which must always arise where there exists a local Government in complete or partial subordination to a central authority. Certain classes of expenditure must obviously be left to the subordinate authority, while other services can be satisfactorily administered by the central Government alone. Both these bodies require to be kept in funds. In India where the great bulk of the revenues of the country is collected in, and credited in the accounts of, the various provinces, the problem resolves itself into the question how the central Government can best be supplied with resources to meet the charges of the services which it must of necessity administer. The provincial settlements represent a method of attaining this object, which has been evolved by diverse and protracted experiment. To meet its own expenditure, the Government of India retains, in the first place, the entire profits of the commercial departments, and, secondly, all the revenue whose locale is no guide to its true incidence, such as the net receipts from Customs, Salt and Opium. The income derived from these sources is, however, insufficient to cover the cost of the imperial services, and an arrangement had therefore to be made by which the other sources of revenue should be distributed between the central and the various provincial Governments.

3. This arrangement took a semi-contractual shape, as a separate settlement, or agreement, concluded by the Government of India with each individual province. In the stage of development which it had reached when the Royal Commission reported, the settlement system presented three main features. In the first place, the settlements had been declared to be quasi-permanent. The Government of India had, it is true, reserved the right of revision, but they had promised to exercise that power "only when the variations from the initial relative standards of revenue and expenditure were, over a substantial term of years, so great as to result in unfairness either to the province itself, or to the Government of India, or in the event of the Government of India being confronted with the alternatives of either imposing general taxation, or seeking assistance from the provinces." The second important principle of the system was that the distribution of revenues between the provincial and central governments was made, except on occasions of grave emergency, with direct reference not to the needs of the central Government, but to the outlay which each province might reasonably claim to incur upon the services, which it administered. The first step taken in concluding a settlement was to ascertain the needs of the province and assign revenue to meet them; the residue only of the income of the province coming into the Imperial exchequer. The third feature of the system was the method by which the revenue accruing from various sources was distributed. The residue which was available for imperial purposes was taken in the shape of a fixed fractional share in a few of the main heads of revenue, which were known as "divided heads." As, however, the distribution of these heads could never be so adjusted as to yield to the province, when added to the revenue from the purely provincial heads, the exact sum necessary to meet provincial charges, equilibrium was effected by means of fixed cash assignments; a deficiency being remedied by an assignment to provincial revenues from the imperial share of the land revenue, and an excess by the reverse process.

Undesirability of altering their general principles, except in the direction of greater permanency.

4. In the general principles of this system the Government of India had no desire to make any change. Various alternative methods of financing the Imperial Government had from time to time been suggested, and certain of these are discussed in paragraphs 65 to 68 of the report of the Royal Commission. The Government of India were in entire agreement with the Commission that any radical change of system was undesirable, and fully accepted the grounds on which they rejected the specific alternatives which they considered. It was clearly preferable to abide by the main lines of a system which had gradually been built up to meet the needs of the country, than to look about for an untried scheme of greater abstract prefection. There was, however, one main feature in which the system appeared susceptible of development, and this development seemed to the Government of India to be eminently desirable in the interests of both the imperial and the provincial Governments. The direction in which they desired to advance was that of giving greater permanency to the settlements. From the point of view of the central Government a measure of this kind was rendered vitally important by the existing situation of imperial finances. Simultaneously with the prospect of the loss of a considerable annual revenue from opium, the Government of India were faced by the necessity of providing large and increasing funds for the extension of education, for the improvement of sanitation, and for other kindred purposes. To insure successful conduct of their finance in these circumstances, it was essential to remove every avoidable element of uncertainty. They therefore decided to introduce as great a degree of finality as possible into the financial relations of the imperial with the provincial Governments. If provinces could be provided, once and for all, with settlements so framed that local Governments could develop their administration from their own assigned resources and could fairly be warned that they must not, except in cases of unusual calamity, expect assistance from imperial funds, the task before the Government of India would be greatly simplified. At the same time it was considered that, by imparting greater precision to their relations with local Governments, they would give the latter a more abiding interest in the husbanding and direction of their own resources; while a sharper definition of the limits of provincial independence in financial matters would make it possible to allow much greater freedom of action within those limits. Before detailing the steps which the Government of India decided to take in order to secure an increase of permanency in the settlements, it will be convenient to discuss the minor points which were specifically referred for the opinion of provincial Governments.

Conversion of unduly large assignments into shares of growing revenue.

5. The first of these points was the desirability of converting overgrown fixed assignments into shares of growing revenue. As the needs of a province inevitably grow and the province is required to meet them from the expansion of its resources, it is frequently argued that the inclusion of a fixed and inelastic element in those resources hampers a local Government in its task of finding funds to meet the normal growth of its expenditure. The Royal Commission wrote with caution on this subject, but recommended the conversion of unduly large fixed assignments into shares of growing revenue by means of the gradual provincialization of heads of revenue which are now divided, and for which the provincial Governments must always be specially responsible. As suitable subjects for provincialization they suggested the revenue from Excise and Forests. The Government of India were in entire sympathy with the cautious attitude adopted by the Commission in this matter. It is by no means always the case that a fixed assignment hampers a province. The cardinal issue in the success of a settlement is that the normal growth of the assigned revenues should be at least equal to the necessary and carefully regulated growth of provincial expenditure. If this object is achieved, the fact that a part of the assigned revenue is fixed is of little or no importance. It is only when the normal increment of revenue falls short of the legitimate increase in expenditure that the fixed assignment becomes an evil and a danger. On these grounds the Government of India were unable to accept the suggestion of certain local Governments for frequent and radical action in the matter of commutation. They considered that fixed assignments should be replaced by a share of growing revenue in the following circumstances only:—

(1) when an assignment is so large as to prevent the increment in revenue from keeping abreast of the legitimate and necessary growth of expenditure; and
(2) when the financial outlook of the moment justifies the abandonment of the necessary amount of growing revenue in exchange for the reduction of fixed charges.

Such commutation will usually take the shape of the provincialization of heads formerly divided. Except in this connection, however, the Government of India were not inclined to accept the imperialization or provincialization of divided heads as an object in itself. Such heads possess the advantages detailed in paragraph 70 of the Royal Commission's Report, and constitute a factor of some value in the general system of Indian finance.

Lump grants from imperial to provincial balances.

6. The second point of reference was the question of lump grants from imperial to provincial balances. Such grants have frequently been given to individual provinces, in order either to admit local Governments to a share in an exceptional increase of prosperity, or to afford the means of financing a policy which commends itself to the central authority. The principle of making allotments of this kind, which has been described as a "policy of doles," was subjected to considerable criticism before the Royal Commission. The chief charges brought against it are that it increases the opportunities for interference by the Government of India in provincial affairs; that a fair distribution of the grants among the provinces is frequently a matter of extreme difficulty: and that the system often compels local Governments to spend money on objects of less comparative urgency than other needs of their populations. From the point of view of the stability of imperial finances, the policy has the additional disadvantage that it must tend to decrease the provincial sense of financial responsibility by accustoming local Governments to look for special and spasmodic assistance outside the terms of their settlements. While fully appreciative of these drawbacks attaching to the system, the Government of India were in complete agreement with the Royal Commission that the total abolition of doles is impracticable. Special grants from imperial to provincial revenues are almost inevitable. A line of policy pressed upon the Government of India by the Secretary of State, by the obvious trend of public opinion, or by the competition for efficiency among local Governments, must frequently be passed on to the provinces, and to insure its efficient prosecution it is essential that the latter should be provided with funds additional to their ordinary resources. Such will doubtless be the case with the forward movement in education and sanitation, when special grants will have to be given on conditions to be settled in correspondence with local Governments. Again, it often happens that the Imperial Government secures a surplus which cannot suitably be employed in the reduction of taxation, and it naturally wishes to share its windfall with the provinces. In both these cases doles are unavoidable. To minimise their disadvantages, the Royal Commission recommended the adoption of three principles:—

(1) The system should not involve any greater degree of interference by the central with the local Government than at present exists.
(2) The grants should be given with due regard to the wishes of the provincial authorities.

(3) They should not necessarily be assigned for the same object in every province.

These principles, which received the full support of the local Governments, were readily accepted by the Government of India. The Government of Bombay, which discussed the matter in some detail, made certain further proposals for the regulation of doles. They suggested, as the most satisfactory method of subsidising a province, the remission of imperial taxation which might, if the provincial authorities so desired, be re-imposed as a provincial burden. This scheme will merit further consideration at any time when the remission of taxation becomes a practical possibility, but there is little immediate prospect of any such action. The suggestion that doles, whenever given, should take the shape of a fractional addition to the provincial share of land revenue has been sufficiently met by the decision of the Government of India, already described, in the matter of the commutation of cash assignments. In any case this system, if adopted, could not be of universal application; as it would clearly be unsuitable to a grant made against a fixed payment, such as the Famine Insurance credit, or to a dole given to a province in which the expansion of revenue already outpaces the normal growth of expenditure. To a third opinion expressed by the Government of Bombay, the Government of India were unable to subscribe. They could not admit that the employment of a grant should, except in the rarest instances, be left to the discretion of the local Government which receives it. While they could readily agree to abstain from critical inquiry into the objects to which a dole is applied, they held that the cases in which it would be necessary to specify the general purposes of the assignment would be the rule rather than the exception. When, for example, considerable sacrifices have been incurred in order to raise money for education, they could not contemplate with equanimity its expenditure upon hospitals or bridges. Similar considerations apply when the Government of India are engaged in distributing a windfall. The disposal of a surplus is akin to a legislative act, being decided after debate in the Imperial Legislative Council; and it is often an alternative to a remission of taxation, in which case the purposes to which it is proposed to devote the surplus are deliberately accepted as more needful and expedient than the relief of the general taxpayer. In such cases the Government of India incur a responsibility with reference to the disposal of grants made to local Governments of which they could not consent to divest themselves.

Alleged inequality in the settlements with the different provinces.

7. Before any steps could be taken to impart greater permanancy to the provincial contracts, it was clearly desirable to remove any imperfections in the various settlements which might be found to exist. The Government of India were fully alive to the charge often brought against the settlements, that they are of unequal liberality in the different provinces. The assumption underlying the existing condition of quasi-permanency is that the settlements start from equilibrium at the given point of time when the contract is made, and that the inevitable growth of provincial expenditure will be met from the expansion of the revenues which have been assigned to the provinces. It is urged by certain critics that, to make the assumption tenable, it must also be assumed that all provinces received equality of treatment at their settlement, and more particularly that the settlement standards provided for an equal degree of advance in the different administrations. It is perfectly well known, however, that, at the time of concluding the latest contracts, some provinces were more backward than others; it is known that some of the previous settlements had been framed on generous and others upon less liberal lines, that the standards of expenditure were in consequence unequal, and that certain provinces have thus been placed at a definite disadvantage for all time. In this way it is argued that the older provinces and those which were most insistent in their demands when the earlier settlements were framed now find themselves in comfortable circumstances; while the more backward and less demonstrative administrations have to face permanent financial stringency. The Government of India were prepared to admit the extreme difficulty of giving a conclusive reply to these arguments. It is impossible to devise a satisfactory test of equality of treatment, which could be applied with safety to the results of the various settlements. They were not, however, ready to concede the justice of the criticisms. The supposed inequality of treatment, if it exist at all, is historical and inevitable rather than the outcome of administrative partiality; while its very existence is extremely doubtful. Each province has had periodical re-settlements since 1882. During the intervening years there has been a steady advance in the equipment of every local Government. The pressure has been constant, both from within and from above, in the direction of greater efficiency and increased administrative comfort; while the supervision and control of the central Government have had the same tendency. All these influences have reacted on each successive revision of the provincial settlements, and have inevitably worked towards an equalization of the scale of expenditure in the different provinces. At every periodical review the poorer local Governments have pressed their grievances; and the haggling of a quarter of a century has established a rough equity which could not now be replaced by theoretical calculations. One province may be behind another in its jails, or a third in its roads, and its subordinate officials may be worse paid than in a fourth; with it probably spends more than its neighbours on police or on education. Taking the administrative equipment as a whole, the Government of India found it impossible to believe that inequality in the settlements had gone far enough to starve one province in its necessities in order to load another with luxuries, and they considered it entirely unnecessary, in seeking a basis for permanency, to make any radical alterations in the existing settlements which have been evolved by the slow process of years.

Removal of minor defects in the settlements preliminary to the introduction of permanent arrangements

8. At the same time it was undoubtedly the fact that imperfections were to be found in certain of the present contracts, which it was undesirable to confirm in perpetuity. Certain of these were due to miscalculations at the time of revision of settlement, or to an unexpected course taken after revision by the revenue of particular provinces. In a number of provinces the fixed assignment had reached a figure which showed signs of becoming excessive. The Government of India accordingly decided to undertake a careful revision of all existing settlements, with a view to the removal of minor defects and the replacement of large cash assignments by shares of growing revenue. With this object, they made a detailed review of the financial position of each province on the lines ordinarily followed in framing a new settlement, checking their conclusions by means of an independent report of the working of each contract obtained from the Accountant-General of the province concerned. As a result of this examination, it was found advisable to make variations in the terms of the settlements, before attempting to make them permanent in order to give the provinces a larger share in the expanding sources of revenue. The exact concessions made have been separately indicated in detail to the various local Governments, but they may for convenience sake be briefly recapitulated here:—

(1) (a) Forest revenue and expenditure were made wholly provincial in all the provinces.

(b) Excise revenue and expenditure were made wholly provincial in Bombay, while in the Central Provinces and the United Provinces, the provincial share of these heads was increased to three-quarters.

(c) Land revenue was made half provincial in the Punjab and five-eighths provincial in Burma.

(d) The provincial interest of the Punjab in major Irrigation works (direct receipts, working expenses and interest on debt) was raised from three-eighths to one-half.

(2) The fixed assignments of the various provinces were reduced by the amount which these changes of classification added to the provincial share of growing revenue.

The financial effect of these arrangements was to convert fixed assignments amounting to 350 lakhs of rupees into growing net revenue, and to deprive the Imperial Government in future years of an annual net increment of 8·15 lakhs in its share of divided revenue. [In the foregoing description of the new settlements no allusion is made to Bengal or Eastern Bengal and Assam, because the subsequent re-constitution of these provinces has abrogated the permanent settlements and necessitated the formation of new and temporary arrangements.]

Reservation in respect of widespread famine.

9. Having thus remedied the defects of the existing settlements, the Government of India approached the task of imparting greater permanency to their financial relations with provincial Governments. They realised, at the outset, that complete permanency was not attainable. The possibility of famine constitutes a danger to the settlement contracts against which it is impossible to provide adequate safeguards. The famine insurance scheme is a convenient device for distributing the expenditure on famine in its earlier stages, or on a partial scarcity; but a really widespread calamity would sweep it away and leave the provinces dependent in large measure upon the bounty of the Imperial Government. In a crisis of this kind the Government of India must of necessity step in and supplement the provincial resources, as it has done in the past, and the contract obligations will, for the time being, remain partially in suspense. Subject, however, to provision against famine, the Government of India considered that the settlements, as now revised, might safely be declared to be fixed in perpetuity. They held that the time had come when local Governments might reasonably be informed that certain growing sources of revenue had been placed, once and for all, at their disposal from which to meet the future needs of the province which they administered. It would be for them to husband their resources and lay them out to the best economical advantage. With the introduction of this element of fixity into the financial relations, it would be possible to allow provincial authorities far greater independence within definite limits, and to relax a great measure of the control which the Government of India have hitherto exercised over the provincial bodies.

Summary of rules governing the future relations of provincial and imperial finance.

10. The views of the Government of India on the various points discussed in the preceding paragraphs were communicated to the Secretary of State, and, with his approval, the following rules have been laid down to govern the future relations of provincial and imperial finance:—

(i) With the exception indicated in rule II, the provincial settlements for Madras, Bombay, the United Provinces, Burma, the Punjab and the Central Provinces will in future be permanent and not subject to revision; and permanent settlements will be framed, as soon as may be found convenient, for Bengal, Bihar and Orissa and Assam. In case of serious famine in a province, the question of assistance from the revenues of the Government of India will be considered. The Government of India reserve the right to call for assistance from provincial revenues in the event of grave embarrassment in their own finances.

(ii) When the fixed assignment of a province becomes unduly large and hampers the expansion of its revenue, as compared with the legitimate and necessary growth of expenditure, it will ordinarily be converted, either in whole or in part, into a share of growing revenues, as soon as the state of imperial finances permits.

(iii) In the event of the grant of special allotments to local Governments out of surplus revenues not required for the remission of taxation, the reduction of debt, or other purposes, the Government of India will retain the option of declaring the purposes for which the money is provided; but—

(a) the grants will not involve greater interference by the central Government than at present exists;

(b) they will be allotted with due regard to the wishes of the recipient Governments; and

(c) they need not necessarily be devoted to one and the same purpose in every province.

(iv) A local Government may not budget for a deficit, unless it satisfies the Government of India that the excess expenditure is due to an exceptional and non-recurring cause, and also, if the deficit involves a reduction of the provincial balance below the prescribed minimum, that suitable arrangements will be made for the restoration of the minimum.

(v) If a local Government exhausts its own balances and receives permission to overdraw upon the general balances, it will be required to take the necessary amount as a short loan from the Government of India. The loan will bear interest and will be repayable in such instalments as the central Government may direct.

(vi) Future corrections in provincial budgets by the Government of India will be restricted to—

(a) divided heads, and

(b) the proposed totals of revenue and expenditure.

A limit will be fixed by the Government of India for ordinary plus fresh recurring expenditure, and care will be taken to secure its observance. All extraordinary receipts will be excluded from the limit, and will be applied to such non-recurring outlay on public works or other objects as the local Governments, assisted (where these exist) by their Councils, may determine. Relief should not, however, be afforded from these receipts towards meeting the ordinary civil works budget of a province in such a manner as indirectly to set free funds for recurring expenditure under another head. Moreover, when a local Government has taken a loan from the Government of India under the provisions mentioned above, extraordinary receipts shall not be regarded as applicable to non-recurring expenditure on public works or other objects until the whole of such loan is repaid. In a year in which there is no object of sufficient urgency and importance to justify the expenditure thereon of such extraordinary receipts, they should be added to provincial balances to serve as a reserve against future emergencies. In framing the budget estimates, the attention of the Government of India should be drawn to the existence of these special resources and to the manner in which it is proposed to dispose of them.

These rules represent, in the opinion of the Government of India, a decided advance in the path or decentralization. They place a greater responsibility on local Governments for the stability of their provincial finances, while at the same time investing them with wide independence. The arrangement aims at securing a clear division of duties and liabilities; and the Government of India trust that it will now be followed, on the part of each local Government by a careful examination of the scale of expenditure which now prevails, particularly in the Roads and Buildings Branch of the Public Works Department. The Government of India have now conducted such an examination into their own finances, with a view to economy and retrenchment; and they think it would be well if local Governments should now do the same, bearing in mind the rigidity of the new arrangements and the grave responsibility for keeping the growth of provincial expenditure at a ratio which shall in no circumstances be greater than the growth of provincial resources.

11. Provincial taxation.—On the subject of Provincial taxation the Royal Commission wrote with studied caution. They found in existence a restriction upon the powers of local Governments which forbade them to impose additional taxation without the previous sanction of the Government of India, and they did not advise the removal of this restriction. They thought, however, that if, in the future, there should come about a clear separation between imperial and provincial finance, with a more effective control over the latter by Legislative Councils, it might become practicable and necessary to allow local Governments to levy special provincial taxation if they wished to increase their scale of provincial expenditure. They did not propose to relax the present statutory safeguards of legislation, without which no taxation can become effective. The Government of India are once again in general agreement with the Commission. Their attitude towards provincial taxation in the past has never been one of disfavour. It has frequently been employed, and still in some measure exists as a supplement to the general revenues for purely provincial purposes. The provincial rates and taxes which have recently been remitted owed their abolition, not to their provincial character, but to the fact that they rested almost entirely on the land, which the Government of India, in pursuance of a settled policy, desire to relieve of miscellaneous burdens. The central Government have in the past frequently advised that provincial resources should be supplemented by small theoretical considerations that, in a vast country of greatly varying conditions, imperial taxation must of necessity be restricted in its range, as very few taxes are suitable for imposition in part of the Indian Empire; that the incidence of an imperial impost must be lighter in some areas than in others; that provincial taxation might not inappropriately balance such inequalities; that a tax which would cause dissatisfaction in one part of the country might arouse no opposition in another; and that experiments in taxation might thus be made with safety on a small scale which would be imprudent or even dangerous if applied to India as a whole.

12. These considerations are however theoretical only. In actual practice definite schemes of provincial taxation have never been pressed with any enthusiasm, and the Government of India can see not strong reason for removing the safeguards which now surround its imposition. They fully recognise that such taxation is a necessary corollary of a fully decentralised system of finance; but pending the development of such a system they consider that no useful purpose would be served by an attempt to define its proper scope or to lay down the criteria which it should satisfy. Financial autonomy for the provinces, if and when it arises, must carry with it the power of taxation. In existing circumstances there is nothing to be gained by varying or diminishing the control, both executive and legislative, which the Government of India now retain. These views have been reported to the Secretary of State, who has expressed his concurrence with them.

13. Provincial borrowing.—The Royal Commission discussed the advisability of permitting local Governments to raise provincial loans in the open market. The majority of its members considered that the existing embargo on such loans should be maintained, but that local Governments should be granted short term loans from imperial revenues to meet the cost of large non-productive works of manifest utility which they cannot finance from their own resources. With the exception of the Government of Bombay, who were particularly anxious to obtain access to the open market, these views found general acceptance with the local Government, and the Government of India are strongly of opinion that they should prevail. The question of loans from imperial funds has already been settled by means of the new provisions regarding provincial overdrafts which have been incorporated in the settlement rules. An overdraft on imperial balances will in future be treated as a short term loan, and it is precisely in connection with works of the kind contemplated by the Commission that such overdrafts will in future be sanctioned. The chief argument for the admission of local Governments to the open market lies in the claim that objects of purely provincial interest would succeed in attracting, at reasonable rates, capital which is not touched by the imperial loans. The truth of this argument could be tested by experience alone: though it is theoretically probable that a project which aroused local enthusiasm might tap resources which are not open to the Government of India. The drawbacks attaching to such an experiment are however very much greater than the possible advantages which might accrue from it. It would be extremely difficult to prevent a loan of the kind contemplated from competing with the imperial loans. The local market is narrow; the period of cheap money is confined to a few months of the year; and the loan business is mainly in the hands of a few large banks. On these grounds the Government of India have always been compelled to refuse to local authorities, such as Port Trusts and Municipalities, all access to the market during the months reserved for their own operations. Provincial loans would either have to be similarly held back until the Government of India had completed their own issues, a course which would certainly affect their prospects; or they would be floated simultaneously with the imperial loans, with depressing effect upon the prices of both.

14. A further objection to the floatation of provincial loans lies in the undesirability of increasing the non-productive debt of India. For really productive projects the Government of India are ordinarily prepared to find funds from their capital account, and the effect of allowing local Governments to enter the open market would undoubtedly be the creation of a considerable quantity of largely unproductive debt, which could not but injuriously affect the credit of India. The existence of a provincial public debt would, moreover, afford an inducement for lavish outlay upon public works, and might thus lead up to a type of financial embarrassment which the Government of India could not view without grave concern. The experience of other countries has shown that debts of this kind tend to grow in volume until the magnitude of the loan charges either effects a material reduction in the margin available for current expenditure on public works, or drives the Government into enhanced taxation. In these circumstances the Government of India are clearly of opinion that the grant of independent borrowing powers to local Governments should be deferred until a more distinct separation has taken place between the finances of the provincial and those of the central authority. The Secretary of State has expressed his general agreement with this view.

15. Borrowing by local bodies.—On the subject of borrowing by local bodies, the Royal Commission reviewed the existing practice with general approval, and suggested two minor changes only—

(a) Local Governments should have final power to sanction the borrowing in the open market of sums not exceeding 5 lakhs and repayable within 30 years.

(b) The provision in section 2 of Act XII of 1897, which requires the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council to every loan under the Act, should be abrogated; general rules governing such loans should be drawn up under section 3 of the Act; and local Governments should then have power to sanction subject to compliance with these rules.

The former recommendation had reference to previous orders which directed that all proposals of local bodies for loans in the open market should be submitted to the Government of India, whose sanction was required in advance to the period of the loan, the date of issue and all other important features of the operation. Effect has already been given to the modifications advised by the Commission by the Notification in the Finance Department, No. 6215-A., dated 30th October 1908. The second recommendation alluded to loans raised by the local authorities to meet such temporary emergencies as the occurrence of famine or the outbreak of dangerous epidemic disease. The Government of India have accepted the proposed change, and steps will be taken to carry it out. The rules to be prescribed under section 3 of Act XII of 1897 will be framed as soon as the necessary delegation has been made of the power vested by section 2 in the Governor-General in Council.

16. Delegation to heads of departments of power of reappropriation.—In paragraph 96 of their report, the Royal Commission advised that, under certain conditions, the powers of reappropriation enjoyed by local Governments should be delegated by them to their heads of departments. The Government of India have accepted this view and have, with the approval of the Secretary of State, authorised local Governments and the Administrations of the Central Provinces, Baluchistan, the North-West Frontier Province, Ajmer-Merwara and Coorg to delegate to Boards of Revenue, Financial Commissioners, and such other officers subordinate to them as have been declared to be heads of departments, the power of making reappropriations in connection with the budget grants of the branches of the administration which they control. It has been laid down that such reappropriations shall be of a routine character only, and shall be made from one minor head to another within the same major head, and that the power shall be exercised subject to the following conditions:—

(1) that savings under salaries and establishment shall not be reappropriated to other classes of expenditure;

(2) that savings on non-recurring expenditure under Supplies and Services, Contingencies and other detailed heads shall not be reappropriated in order to provide for additional recurring expenditure under Salaries or Establishment, or on any other account; and

(3) that it will be open to the Government of India and local Governments to require, at any time of financial pressure, that the exercise by heads of departments of their powers of reappropriation shall be suspended.

These orders do not involve the curtailment of any more extended powers that may have already been delegated with the sanction of the Government of India to any authorities subordinate to local Governments and administrations.

17. Relaxation of the limits imposed on the spending powers of local Governments and Administrations.—In conclusion, the Government of India desire to intimate to local Governments that they have had under separate consideration the recommendations regarding the relaxation of the limits imposed on the spending powers of local Governments and Administrations which are contained in paragraphs 119 to 148 of the Royal Commission's Report. They have made extensive proposals for the increase of provincial powers in this connection, which have met with the general approval of the Secretary of State; and they hope soon to be in a position to issue separate orders on the subject.

ORDERED that a copy of the Resolution be communicated to all local Governments, the Honourable the Chief Commissioners, Central Provinces and Assam, the Home, Education, Commerce and Industry, Public Works and the Revenue and Agriculture Departments, the Comptroller and Auditor General, the several Civil Accountants-General and the Comptrollers, Central Provinces and Assam.

Ordered also that this Resolution be published in the Gazette of India for general information.
